"Portrait of a Charming English Girl," by Sir Joshua Reynolds, Brings $2,000.

$1,550 FOR A LAWRENCE

Reynolds's "Age of Innocence" Brings $1,220—Total Receipts for Art and Literary Collection, $35,264.

The pictures of the late J. Abner Harper, sold under the direction of the American Art Association last evening at Mendelssohn Hall, brought for sixty-nine canvases $25,155, making for the total sale of art and literary property in the Harper collection $35,264.

The picture in the collection which was exhibited under the title of "Penelope Boothby," by Sir Joshua Reynolds, as a replica, and which went last night to the Blakeslee Galleries for $2,000, was bought originally by Mr. Harper from T. J. Blakesley. At the opening of the sale last evening Mr. Kirby read a letter from Mr. Blakesley, which said that the picture was not a replica of the well-known one of Penelope Boothby, but "A Portrait of a Charming English Girl."

Another explanation made was in reference to the portrait of Charles Dickens by W. B. M. A letter received yesterday morning by the American Art Association from the National Academy of Design stated that the initials referred to William B. Meyers, who in 1863 had a picture in the Academy and was at that time a resident of Richmond, Va. There is no record of Meyers in biographical dictionaries, it was stated, but the picture portrait was undoubtedly made from a sketch from life of Dickens when he was in this country and finished from photographs. The picture was sold to Kaldenberg for $850.

There was not a large audience at the sale, which was uneventful. "A Pastoral," school of Boucher, a small picture, sold for $250. There was a disagreement as to possession, and it was put up again and went to Paul Mersch for $225.

Following is a list of pictures selling for more than $100, with names of artists and purchasers where given. The Blakeslee Galleries, was the largest buyer:

A painting in miniature, oils on copper, "The Fairy Tale," an old woman telling a story to a crowd of boys with the words inscribed on the back, "L'ogre l'a mange," brought one of the highest prices of the afternoon Harper sale, $85. The painting was circular in shape, 3½ inches in diameter with no signature or date. An oval ivory medallion, a portrait of Dante carved in low relief in a carved and tinted ivory frame brought the same price, and a companion in size and shape, portrait of Couthon, sold for $55. A portrait of Lady St. Asaph by Richard Cosway, in a gold locket frame with a lock of hair arranged with gold wire and seed pearls at the back, went to I. Voron for $60, and the same buyer paid $42.50 for a miniature of Sir William Hamilton by Bernard de Guerdar, signed and dated and in an old ormolu frame. A miniature portrait of the artist Ingres by Mme. de Mirbel or Jean E. J. Augustine went to

E. H. Blashfield for $32.50 and to the same buyer went the miniature of Pauline Bonaparte by J. F. Hollier in a gold frame, also for $32.50.
The returns for the afternoon sale were $2,519.

LOW PRICES IN HARPER SALE

Sixty-nine Canvases from Abroad

Bring Only $25,155.

Paintings by the English masters and by artists of other European schools, that formed a part of the J. Abner Harper collection, were sold by the American Art Association in Mendelssohn Hall last night for low prices, the sixty-nine pictures bringing only $25,155. Among the few private buyers were Mary F. Willis, who paid $350 for Barbier's "Rinaldo and Armida"; C. W. Harden, who gave $1,125 for Cuyp's "Child and Goat"; F. A. Vanderlip, who paid $300 for Copley's "Portrait of Nelson," $310 for Lely's "Portrait of a Man" and $125 for Papperitz's "Head and Bust of a Boy." Captain De Lamar gave $325 for a portrait of Sir Thomas Lawrence, attributed to that artist; Paul Mersch paid $525 for "A Pastoral" in the manner of Boucher, Mrs. M. E. Bernheimer $325 for Romney's "Portrait of Sir Meuk Smithson," Lewis Bamberger $1,225 for Sir Joshua Reynolds's "Age of Innocence" and Charles Koller $350 for Cosway's "Picture of Health."

Virtually all the rest of the paintings were bought by dealers or agents, the Blakeslee Galleries being the largest purchasers. T. J. Blakeslee had sold most of the paintings in the collection to J. Abner Harper. Blakeslee paid $1,550 for Sir Thomas Lawrence's "Portrait of Lady Harford," $500 for the "Portrait of Mrs. Fitzgerald," $1,050 for Gordon's "Portrait of a Young Lady," $2,000 for the "Portrait of a Young Girl" that had been catalogued as a replica of Sir Joshua's "Penelope Boothby" and $375 for a replica of Sir Joshua's "Doctor Samuel Johnson."

In the afternoon session in the American Art Galleries the miniatures brought only $2,159, the highest figure of the afternoon being $70, paid by E. H. Blashfield for a miniature by Cosway. The total for the whole sale was $35,264.50.

CONDITIONS OF SALE

1. The highest Bidder to be the Buyer, and if any dispute arise between two or more Bidders, the Lot so in dispute shall be immediately put up again and re-sold.

2. The Auctioneer reserves the right to reject any bid which is merely a nominal or fractional advance, and therefore, in his judgment, likely to affect the Sale injuriously.

3. The Purchasers to give their names and addresses, and to pay down a cash deposit, or the whole of the Purchase-money, if required, in default of which the Lot or Lots so purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.

4. The Lots to be taken away at the Buyer's Expense and Risk within twenty-four hours from the conclusion of the Sale, unless otherwise specified by the Auctioneer or Managers previous to or at the time of Sale, and the remainder of the Purchase-money to be absolutely paid, or otherwise settled for to the satisfaction of the Auctioneer, on or before delivery; in default of which the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible if the Lots be lost, stolen, damaged, or destroyed, but they will be left at the sole risk of the purchaser.

5. While the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible for the correctness of the description, genuineness, or authenticity of, or any fault or defect in, any Lot, and make no Warranty whatever, they will, upon receiving previous to date of Sale trustworthy expert opinion in writing that any Painting or other Work of Art is not what it is represented to be, use every effort on their part to furnish proof to the contrary; failing in which, the object or objects in question will be sold subject to the declaration of the aforesaid expert, he being liable to the Owner or Owners thereof for damage or injury occasioned thereby.

6. To prevent inaccuracy in delivery, and inconvenience in the settlement of the Purchases, no Lot can, on any account, be removed during the Sale.

7. Upon failure to comply with the above conditions, the money deposited in part payment shall be forfeited; all Lots uncleared within one day from conclusion of Sale (unless otherwise specified as above) shall be re-sold by public or private sale, without further notice, and the deficiency (if any) attending such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulter at this Sale, together with all charges attending the same. This Condition is without prejudice to the right of the Auctioneer to enforce the contract made at this Sale, without such re-sale, if he thinks fit.

8. The Undersigned are in no manner connected with the business of the cartage or packing and shipping of purchases, and although they will afford to purchasers every facility for employing careful carriers and packers, they will not hold themselves responsible for the acts and charges of the parties engaged for such services.

THE ruins of a buttressed building, with windows naked to the sky, surmounts a round-topped eminence in the rear of the scene. Some sheep are feeding on the slope. From the foot of the hill a road, bordered on the left by a bank of trees, leads diagonally to the foreground. Four cows are approaching, followed by a man and a boy. On the right of the foreground a man, carrying two pitchers, stands near another who has his hand on an open gate. Three cart-horses have passed through it into a farmyard, which is bounded by a barn and trees.

THE head of a young woman, almost facing the spectator, is tilted a little back and inclined over the left shoulder, while the eyes glance to her right. Vine leaves and grapes adorn the straggling hair. A loose white, gray-shadowed chemise, held in place by a bluish-gray band around the right arm, leaves the shoulders and right breast exposed. A leopard skin is wound around the left arm and reappears above the right shoulder.

STUDY OF A GIRL'S HEAD

Height, 18 inches; width, $14\frac{1}{4}$ inches

T. J. Blakeslee Galleries

THE sketch shows the head of a girl, slightly turned toward the left, whence a light illumines the right cheek. The rest of the face is in greenish shadow, interrupted by a patch of ruddy glow below the left eye. A tangle of chestnut hair upon the forehead and down the sides of the face is suggested by a few strokes over the flat underpainting. The whole is placed against a background, stained with tawny drab.

THE head and bust, three-quarters in view, are inclined to the right. The former is covered with a stubby growth of short dark brown hair, while the moustache and beard, which reaches up to the ears, are red. A narrow ruff surmounts a collar, formed of red tabs which lap over the gorget. The latter is of dark steel, embellished with gold arabesques. A broad, gold neckchain descends over the tan-colored surtout, the armholes of which are edged with red and wide squares. The sleeve of the undergarment is striped with cream and gold, and set off with a knot of rosy-cream webbing. A note testifying to the fact of the portrait being of Philip II by Sir Antonio More, appears at the back of the canvas, where also are a red seal and a wooden tablet, incised with a monogram, apparently of the letters, "D. BRITISH (1726-1776)

BUST PORTRAIT OF A GENTLEMAN

SAID TO BE RICHARD BRINSLEY SHERIDAN

Height, $29\frac{3}{4}$ inches; width, 25 inches

Blakeslee Galleries

THE portrait presents a young man in ruby velvet coat with high roll-over collar. A vest of the same hue and material appears beneath, the two top buttons being unfastened, displaying the creamy-white fall of the stock. The bust is full to the front, while the face, of warm complexion, is inclined slightly to the left. It is surmounted by a gray wig, combed back from the forehead and rolled over the ears.

Purchased from T. J. Blakeslee, New York, 1895.

BRITISH (1780-1859)

SIR ROBERT PRICE, BART.
OF FOXLEY, HEREFORDSHIRE

(1786-1857)

Height, 30 inches; width, 25 inches

Geo. N. Pratt
THE head and bust of a gentleman of middle age are represented three-quarters full in the direction of the right. His brown hair is short and wavy around the face, which is distinguished by gray eyes, a strong straight nose and a somewhat prominent underlip. The chin shows between the points of a stand-up collar, over the bow of a white stock. The lapels of a brown coat are visible below a black redingote, the collar of which is covered with brown fur, while frogs and buttons decorate the breast.

An inscription on the back details that the subject was of Ap-Rhys stock; a famous lawyer in the reign of William III, and Anne and M. P. for Herefordshire. That he defended Lord Mohun, the noted duelist, and was himself arrested in Rome for carrying an English Bible. He was pardoned by Innocent XI, to whom he presented the Bible, which is said to be now in the Vatican Library.

Collection of James Price, London.

Height, 30 inches; width, 25 inches

Charles Kolker

A YOUNG woman faces the spectator, her yellow-brown hair, wavy and tangled, being blown toward the left against a greeny, pale blue sky. Her body, seen to the waist, is enveloped in a white cloak with broad ruffles around the neck, where it is caught into place by the right hand. A black velvet band encircles the wrist, the arm being bare to the elbow. A vista of meadow, with cows and trees, shows on the right under a horizon dyed with rosy-cream.

From the Hamilton W. Day Collection, London.

Purchased from Arthur Tooth & Sons, 1897.

PORTRAIT OF NELSON

Height, 30 inches; width, 25 inches

F. A. Vanderlip

THE rosy face of a young man is three-quarters shown, inclined to the left, though the gray-blue eyes front the spectator. The soft brownish blond hair lies in a row of little wisps over the forehead and curls at the back of the neck. The body, seen nearly to the waist, is attired in a black coat which has a high roll-over collar and is embellished with gilt buttons, bearing a demi-lion rampant. The figure is placed against a bank on which the right arm rests, a view of the sea and a ship appearing in the left distance.

Purchased from T. J. Blakeslee, New York, 1895.

PORTRAIT OF LADY STANHOPE

Height, 30 inches; width, 25 inches

Armond G. Smith

UNDER a black Gainsborough hat the face is almost full to the spectator, framed at the sides with fluffy brown hair. The eyes are olive-slate in hue; the nose is delicate, but determined, and the lips are fleshy. A white fichu is crossed over the bosom and fastened in a large bow at the back of a pale sapphire silk dress, the sleeves of which are finished just below the elbow with ruffles. The figure, represented nearly to the knees, is seated against a crimson curtain, at the right of which appears a glimpse of landscape.

Purchased from T. J. Blakeslee, New York, 1894.

LADY IN WHITE

Height, 30 inches; width 25 inches

Blakeslee Galleries

MOTHER AND CHILDREN

Height, 44 inches; width, 35 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches

Mrs. M. S. Hirschberg

WHILE she sits facing us, with a baby on her lap, a ruddy hued young woman turns her head in profile to the right to greet a little brown-haired boy. The latter has his right hand around the back of his mother's neck, resting on her shoulder, and his left hand laid upon her chin, as he lifts up his face to be kissed. Meanwhile, the baby, lying on its back, raises its hands as if to attract the mother's notice. Its brown and rosy body is nude except for the corner of a white drapery that lies over the woman's rich dull red skirt. Her left hand shows under the baby's body, while her right lies upon a dark blue mantle that covers her right shoulder and breast. The little boy is clad in a loosely fitting brown tunic.

CHILD AND GOAT

Height, 48 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches; width, 35 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches

E. N. H. arden

RINALDO AND ARMIDA

Height, 44 inches; length, 60 inches

THE beautiful sorceress of Tasso's "Jerusalem Delivered" is represented in the act of threatening to pierce her bosom with an arrow. Her figure is shown, full face, almost to the knees, clad in a golden amber robe, with an ashy-olive sash knotted around the waist. The bodice, finished with little buttons and loops, is unfastened, displaying the right breast. This has arrested the gaze of the Crusader, Rinaldo, as he stands at the lady's right, grasping her outstretched arm with both his hands. He is accoutred in a helmet, with white and olive plumes, and a brown scale cuirass, edged with metal, a crimson mantle being draped over his right shoulder. Armida's uplifted eyes are dewed with tears and her lips parted in anguish, while her left arm is held extended over a breast-plate, helmet and quiver of arrows which lie on the ground.

Size, $1\frac{5}{8}$ inches by $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Wolfgang Amadens Mozart was born at Salzburg in 1756. At four years of age he was a composer, and at five he performed in public. In his sixth year, taken by his father "on tour" as a musical prodigy, he captured the critical public of Vienna, and endeared himself by his innocent and natural manners to the Emperor Francis I. Unlike most "infant prodiges," however, he developed into a great musician. During his short life he produced an amazing quantity of music of an inexpressible charm, for he composed with wonderful celerity. "Don Giovanni," "Figaro," and the "Magic Flute" are among those of his operas which still hold the boards. He died under distressing circumstances in 1791.

608—PORTRAIT OF DOCTOR JOHNSON

Artist unknown. Half-length. Full face. Curled wig, clean shaven face, blue eyes. Wears a green collarless coat, opened in front to expose the white lawn "bands." Dark background. Enamel painting on copper. Comparatively modern. In ormolu frame, with "D. S. Johnson" in blue enamel. Oval shape.

Size, 2½ inches by 2⅛ inches.

Le Kain (Henri Louis Cain), one of the most celebrated actors of the French stage, was born in Paris in 1729. He began his histrionic career in a tiny theatre on the Rue St. Merry, devoted to the performances of amateurs, but in 1750 he attracted the attention of Voltaire, who, then at the height of his influence, took him under his patronage and eventually introduced him to the Comédie-Française. Here Le Kain quickly took his position as the most important member of the company. He brought about a complete reform of stage costume and banished the full-bottomed wig and square-skirted coat which up to that time had been the only wear permitted on the stage. Frederick the Great invited him to play at Potsdam, and heaped pecuniary and other honors upon him. He died in 1778, leaving an interesting volume of memoirs, which were re-edited by Talma in 1825. One of his greatest parts was Mahomet in the play of that name.

632—PORTRAIT OF DANIEL O'CONNELL

Artist unknown. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Brown hair, with slight side-whiskers and dark blue eyes. He wears a dark blue coat buttoned over so as to show the merest edge of the red waistcoat, a high standing, linen collar, and a white cambric cravat. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated (about 1825). In gilt frame, set with paste diamonds. Oval shape.

Size, $1\frac{7}{8}$ inches by $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Born in 1775, Daniel O'Connell, "The Liberator," belonged to an old Irish family that had suffered under the penal code that kept the Catholics in subjection. He thus inherited his strong antipathy to British rule in Ireland. After attaining a distinguished position at the Irish Bar, he entered Parliament in 1828, as the leader in the movement for Catholic emancipation, the successful outcome of which in 1829 was entirely due to his genius and energy. After following the Whigs for many years he changed his policy in 1841 and became the foremost champion of Repeal, and one of the earliest of "Home Rule" agitators. But the great famine of 1846-7 put an end to his hopes, and he died at Genoa in 1847.

633—PORTRAIT OF A YOUTH

Artist unknown. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Curly brown hair dressed high above the head; dark brown eyes. Clean shaven face. Black coat with high collar and lapels. White waistcoat and high white stock and cravat tied in a bow in front. Reddish background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. In gold locket frame. Oval shape.

Size, 3 inches by $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

634—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

Artist unknown. Bust length. Profile view of face looking towards the right. Dark gray hair simply arranged under close-fitting Dutch cap, embroidered in red and blue. Brown eyes. Rose-colored dress with white lawn fichu. Around the neck is a narrow band of black velvet with a pearl clasp and pearl pendant. Greenish-colored background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. In old chased and engraved gold frame. Oval shape.

Size, 1 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches by 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

635—PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG GIRL

Artist unknown. Half-length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Curly reddish-brown hair, confined by a pointed coronet-shaped head-dress; brown eyes. High-waisted, short-sleeved white muslin dress of the Empire period. She wears a gold chain and locket and gold hoop ear-rings. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. In octagonal gold frame with loop for use as a locket. At the back is a sepia drawing of a man and woman embracing in front of a tripod altar. Below is the inscription: "De loin, comme de près; François et Madeleine." Octagonal shape.

Size, 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches by $\frac{7}{8}$ inch.

636—PORTRAIT OF LADY

Artist unknown. Half-length. Full face looking towards the left. Dark curly hair dressed very low over the forehead; dark brown eyes, with white turban-like cap. Black, long-sleeved and high-waisted dress of the Empire period, with white lawn fichu. Black velvet ribbon around the neck close up to the chin and below a necklace of red coral beads. Light blue background. Painted on ivory (cracked). Unsigned and undated. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches by 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

637—PORTRAIT OF MARIA FOOTE

Artist unknown. Half-length, seated. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Curly brown hair falling in ringlets by the side of the face, and dressed with flowers and a flowing white veil. High-waisted dress with a red ribbon sash as girdle. Background of blue sky and foliage. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. In carved ivory frame. Oval shape.

Size, 3½ inches by 2¾ inches.

Maria Foote, Countess of Harrington, was born in 1797 at Plymouth, where her father, formerly an officer in the army, was manager of the local theatre. She made her first appearance on the stage in 1810 as Juliet, and in 1814 she became a member of the company at Covent Garden. Her abilities as an actress were but mediocre, but her great beauty secured her the favor of the public. She was a tireless worker and travelled during the summer months over the whole of England. During five years she is said to have travelled by postchaise no less than 25,000 miles. In 1831 her theatrical career came to a close on her marriage with Charles Stanhope, the Fourth Earl of Harrington. She died in 1867.

638—PORTRAIT OF QUEEN ELIZABETH

Artist unknown. Nearly half-length. Full face. The eyes are gray and the auburn-colored hair is dressed high over the forehead, with long ringlets falling on either side and surmounted by a crown of pearls, with a pearl and emerald pendant. She wears a high-fluted ruff, a bodice of red, semé with emeralds, and a blue cloak. Around the neck is a long pearl necklace, with a cross-shaped pendant having an emerald in the centre and long pearl drops. The stomacher is of white satin embroidered with green fleurettes. Greenish background, with E. R. under two crowns painted in gold at the top. Painted on ivory. Evidently a copy of an older original. Mounted as a locket with plaited hair at the back. Oval shape.

Size, 2½ inches by 1⅞ inches.

639—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

Artist unknown. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Curly brown hair under a broad-brimmed black hat trimmed with white ostrich plume; blue eyes. Dressed in a short-sleeved, low-necked dress of light blue. She wears a necklace of green jade. Landscape background, with blue sky. Painted on ivory. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 2 inches by 1¾ inches.

640—PORTRAIT OF MISS PEYTON

Artist unknown. Half-length. Profile view of face looking towards the left. Prematurely gray hair dressed in a twisted braid with small ringlets over the ears. Brown eyes. High-waisted, short-sleeved dress of white with trimming of pearl beads. Around the neck is a fine gold chain in a double loop from which depends an oval gold locket. Blue background with red stippling. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. At the back gold locket frame having, under glass, a tress of brown hair in the form of a weeping willow over gilt pedestal with an urn. On this is engraved: "Eliza Ann Peyton. Died 29 April 1811. At Madras. Ag'd 21. R.P." Oval shape.

Size, 2½ inches by 2 inches.

641—PORTRAIT OF PRINCE METTERNICH

Artist unknown. Half length, seated. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Fair hair plainly dressed, clean shaven face and hazel-colored eyes. He wears a blue high-collared and wide-lapelled coat with brass buttons, a yellow waistcoat, a high turned-over collar and black cravat, and, around his neck, the ribbon of an order, the insignia of which and of another, are suspended at his buttonhole. He is sitting at and leaning over a table with one hand supporting a document, or drawing; a crayon in a brass holder lies near him. Greenish colored background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated (but evidently about the year 1800). In contemporary ormolu frame. Rectangular shape.

Size, 3 inches by 2¾ inches.

Prince Metternich, Austrian Diplomatist and Statesman, was born in 1773, and after serving as Ambassador at Dresden, Berlin and Paris became Chancellor and Foreign Minister in 1809, when he made peace with Napoleon, between whom and the Allies he unsuccessfully attempted to mediate in 1813. Always a reactionary, on the restoration of the Bourbons he organized the "Holy Alliance," but in 1848 he was forced to resign and take up his abode in England. He died in 1859. His private character was very lovable. He was an affectionate husband, a tender father and a delightful friend.

642—PORTRAIT OF HORTENSE DE BEAUHARNAIS

Artist unknown. Bust length. Three-quarter view looking towards the right. Dark hair in clustered curls and brown eyes. The head-dress is a square of red edged with white lace and tied in coquettish fashion over the head and under the chin. The décolleté dress is of red. Background of green. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 3 inches by 2⅝ inches.

Hortense Beauharnais, daughter of the ill-fated Josephine, wife of Napoleon I, was born in 1783. She married Louis Bonaparte, King of Holland, but was separated from him in 1810, and retired to Switzerland. Her son Louis afterwards became the Emperor Napoleon III of France.

643—PORTRAIT OF GEORGE I OF ENGLAND

Artist unknown. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Powdered wig falling in curls over the shoulders; dark blue eyes. He wears a double shoulder cape of ermine and a lace cravat. Dark background. Painted on ivory, with illegible signature to the left, but undated. In contemporary gold and silver frame surmounted by a crown and paste jewel, with space for hair at back. Pointed oval shape.

Size, $1\frac{7}{8}$ inches by $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

644—PORTRAIT OF ELIZABETH BERKELEY, MARGRAVINE OF AUSPACH

Artist unknown. Half-length. Full face turned over the left shoulder. Powdered hair dressed over a cushion in front and falling in long ringlets over the shoulders. Brown eyes. Large black felt hat trimmed with a blue ribbon and dark purple ostrich plume. A simple fichu of thin cambric over the shoulders, and a bodice with falling collar and lapels of yellowish material striped with red and gray. A white rose, with blue flowers at the breast. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Signed, A. D. in monogram and dated 1794. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, $3\frac{7}{8}$ inches by $3\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

A singularly romantic career was that of Elizabeth Craven, Margravine of Auspach-Baireuth. The youngest daughter of the Earl of Berkeley, she was born in 1750, and when a girl of seventeen married Mr., afterwards Lord, Craven. By him she had six children, but in 1780 they separated, and she devoted herself to travelling, publishing in 1789 her well-known "Journey to Constantinople." About that time she took up her residence in Auspach and embarked on a platonic friendship of an intense nature with the Margrave, who was a nephew of Frederick the Great, and had been early married against his desires to one of the Princesses of Saxe-Coburg, who, however, when Lady Craven met him, was dead. In 1791 Lord Craven died and his widow immediately became the Margravine of Auspach-Baireuth. The Margrave sold his two principalities to Prussia, and the newly married pair came to England and lived, until his death in 1806, at Brandenburg House, Hammersmith, near London. She was a clever playwright, writing chiefly for her private theatre at Brandenburg House, but one of her comedies was produced at Drury Lane. She died at Naples in 1828, leaving a volume of interesting, if somewhat, scandalous memoirs.

645—PORTRAIT OF MARIE PAULINE BONAPARTE

Artist unknown. Bust length. Nearly full face looking towards the right. Dark hair dressed plainly and falling over the ears with a string of pearls and a forehead pendant. Black décolleté dress showing the lace chemisette and with a pearl ornament at the breast. Around the neck is a heavy necklace of sapphires, pearls and diamonds. Bluish-gray background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated (about 1820). In ivory frame. Oval shape.

Size, 2 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches by 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Marie Pauline Bonaparte, born in 1780, was the second sister of Napoleon I. In 1801 she married General Lecerc, whom she accompanied on the visit to St. Domingo, which ended his life by an attack of yellow fever. In 1803 she married Prince Camillo Borghese, but the union proved unhappy. She lived some years alone in Italy and accompanied Napoleon to Elba. She died in 1825.

646—PORTRAIT OF COMTESSE DU BARRY

Artist unknown. Three-quarter length. Seated at a harpsichord and facing the spectator with the head turned slightly to the left. One hand rests upon a sheet of manuscript music, the other, resting upon a table, holds a pen. Hair is powdered, with a jewelled tiara. Around the neck is a fine black cord, from which depends a gold locket in the form of a heart. The over-bodice is of fine semi-transparent net, the under-bodice of rose-colored silk. The sleeves are short and flowering. Background showing the interior of a room with a green curtain, a bookcase with books, and a mirror in a carved wooden frame. On the table to the left are books and a sheet of music. Painted on card. Unsigned. In old ormolu frame. Rectangular shape.

Size, $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches by 3 inches.

Madam Du Barry, one of the mistresses of Louis XV, was born in 1746, and executed in 1793, during the Reign of Terror.

647—PORTRAIT OF NAPOLEON I

Artist unknown. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Hair long and wavy and dressed low over forehead. Clean shaven face. Dressed in a general's uniform of the Army of the Republic. High-collared coat with lapels and epaulets. White background. Painted in sepia on porcelain. Unsigned and undated (about 1798). In contemporary, square ormolu frame. Circular shape.

Diameter, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

648—PORTRAIT OF FRAU VON SCHILLER

Artist unknown. Half-length. Three-quarter view facing to the right. Light brown hair, brought forward in small corkscrew curls under a deep frilled mob-cap, tied under the chin with a narrow ribbon; blue eyes. She wears a bodice of white lawn with falling lace-edged collar, and around her shoulders is thrown a red shawl; her hands are crossed in front of her. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. In ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches by $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Charlotte von Lengefeld (who became Frau von Schiller) was born in 1766 at Rudolstadt, near Jena; her father, who died when she was a child, being Royal Forester in his district. She first met Schiller in Mannheim when she was about 18, but it was not until 1787 that the acquaintance ripened into intimacy. She was a girl of remarkable intellectual charm, and of considerable beauty, and the wearied poet soon found her companionship necessary to his existence. They were married on February 20, 1790, and for fifteen years their married life, in spite of sickness and adverse circumstances, was of the happiest. Schiller died in 1805, leaving her with four children. She herself died in Bonn in 1826.

649—PORTRAIT OF MARIE ANTOINETTE

Artist unknown. Half-length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Powdered hair arranged over cushions at sides with long ringlets over shoulders; gray eyes. Blue dress with long sleeves open at neck, with frilled fichu of white lawn and pink ribbon tied in a bow at bosom. Dark background. Painted on ivory (cracked). Unsigned and undated. Forming the lid of snuff box of tortoise shell, with chased and engraved mounting. Circular shape.

Diameter, 3 inches.

Marie Antoinette, Queen of France, was the daughter of the Empress Maria Theresa of Austria. Born in 1755, she married Louis XVI when he was Dauphin, becoming queen four years later. She fled with the king to Varennes in June, 1791, and a year later was imprisoned with him, being finally tried and guillotined in October, 1793.

650—PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG LADY

Artist unknown. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Brown hair falling in ringlets over the neck, under a white cap with bow of blue ribbon; blue eyes. Dark blue dress open at neck with white fichu. Black velvet ribbon around neck. Blue sky and foliage as background. Painted on ivory. Signed to left "Cng . . elastre," but undated (about 1800). Forming the lid of a bonbonnière of Amboyna wood and tortoise shell. Circular shape.

Miniature, diameter, $2\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

Box, diameter, $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

651—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

Artist unknown. Half-length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Curly dark hair brought low over the forehead; hazel-colored eyes. High-waisted, short-sleeved white muslin dress of the Empire period, with square-cut corsage. Light green background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated (about 1805). In old square ebony and ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches by $1\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

652—PAINTING IN MINIATURE

By Sauvage. Subject: A Nymph sacrificing at an altar, inscribed "À la Reconnoissance." She is seated in a chair with one arm outstretched in the act of sacrifice, the other hanging by her side and holding a wreath, painted on ivory en camaïeu with black background. Signed, "Sauvage." Undated. In ebony frame. Circular shape.

Diameter, $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Piat Joseph Sauvage was born in Touraine in 1744 and studied, when a young man, in Antwerp, as a pupil of M. J. Geeraerts. On his return to Paris in 1770 he essayed several styles of painting, but finally adopted that of "bas-relief," or painting en camaïeu. In this he became so eminent that he was appointed "peintre de Louis XVI," and his works were held in high estimation in Paris. Towards the close of his career he returned to Touraine, where he became professor of the local school of art and reorganized the academy with great success. He died in 1818, and some of his more important paintings are in the Public Museums in Touraine, Lille and Antwerp.

653—PORTRAIT OF THE MARQUISE DE POMPADOUR

Attributed to Massé. Three-quarter length, standing. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Hair powdered and dressed away from the forehead, with a small bunch of roses on the left-hand side; brown eyes. She wears a short-sleeved dress of rose-colored silk with a square-cut opening to the bodice over white lace chemisette with flowing sleeves, and a bow of rose-colored silk under the chin. She holds in both hands in front of her an open book of music. Background of trees, rose-bushes and blue sky. Painted on ivory. Signed, but undated (about 1750). In modern ormolu frame. Long oval shape.

Size, 2¾ inches by 3¼ inches.

Jeanne Antoinette d'Étioles, Marquise de Pompadour, the most famous of the many mistresses of Louis XV of France, was born in Paris in 1721, and educated by a wealthy financier with special reference to the position she was afterwards to fill. In 1746 she married a nephew of her guardian, M. d'Étioles, and soon became a queen of fashion. She first attracted the king's attention when he was hunting, but it was not until 1744 that he was finally subjugated, and she became "maîtresse en titre." From that time until her death in 1764, she was the practical ruler of France. Her title was derived from the estate of Pompadour, which the king bought for her at the beginning of their intimacy.

Jean Baptiste Massé, the most celebrated French miniaturist of his time, was born in Paris in 1687, and during the early part of his life attained some distinction as an engraver. He then turned his attention to miniature and enamel painting, studying under Jouvenet, and very soon had made himself the fashion at the court of Louis XV. His detractors insisted that his habit of flattering his sitters was largely responsible for his success. In 1749 he was appointed a Councillor of State, and in 1760 the Inspector of the Royal Gallery of Painting. He died in 1767. The archives of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs contain frequent references to the portraits he painted for insertion in snuff boxes to be presented to foreign potentates and others. One of these, incrustated with diamonds, cost the State the almost incredible sum of 129,852 francs.

654—PORTRAIT OF THE COUNTESS OF PEMBROKE

Attributed to Richard Cosway. Three-quarter length. Full face turned slightly towards the left. Powdered hair in rolls and ringlets. Large white straw hat, with blue and white ribbon and white ostrich plumes. White bodice and panniers over a pale blue skirt with frilled lace edging around square opening of bodice. She holds in front of her in both hands a page of a letter. Background conventional landscape with the trunk of a tree on the right and an urn of flowers on a square pedestal to the left. Blue sky and foliage in the distance. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. In modern brass frame. From the collection of Mr. Barrett of Lees Court, Kent, England. Oval shape.

Size, 3 inches by 3 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches.

This Countess of Pembroke must have been the wife of the Henry Herbert, Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, to whom Horace Walpole refers in 1750 as "A fine boy." She was Lady Elizabeth Spencer, the second daughter of Charles, Duke of Marlborough, and was married to the Earl of Pembroke, March 23rd, 1756. She died at the age of eighty-five in 1831.

655—PORTRAIT OF THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND

By Sir William Charles Ross. Three-quarter length. Standing facing directly to the right, but with the head turned over the right shoulder so as to present a three-quarter view. Brown hair dress in early Victorian style, falling over the ears, with a chignon and ringlets behind. Brown eyes. She wears a white silk décolleté dress with a black lace mantilla over the left shoulder and held up by the right hand. At her breast is a small bouquet of flowers. To the left is conventional red drapery, to the right a balustrade and a stone pillar with a passion flower. Background of blue sky and purple cloud effect, and a landscape. Painted on ivory (cracked). Signed, "W. C. Ross," and dated 1842. In plain ormolu frame. Rectangular shape.

Size, 6 inches by 4½ inches.

Harriet Elizabeth Georgiana, daughter of the sixth Earl Carlisle, was the wife of George Granville Leveson Gower, the second Duke of Sutherland, who succeeded to the Dukedom in 1833. Married to him in 1823, she was one of the prominent figures at the Court of Queen Victoria, holding the high position of Mistress of the Robes to that monarch. She died in 1868, seven years after the death of her husband.

Sir William Ross inherited his artistic instincts from both parents. His father was himself a miniature painter; his mother, sister of Auber Smith the engraver, was also a portrait painter. He exhibited at the Royal Academy when only fifteen, and his popularity as a miniature painter began with the accession to the throne of Queen Victoria. He painted the first miniature of the Queen after her coronation, and for many years was the most popular miniature painter at the English court. At least fifty of his miniatures are in the royal collection at Windsor Castle. He was elected an associate of the Royal Academy in 1838, and a full member in 1839, in which year he was also knighted. He continued to practice his art until 1857, when he was stricken with paralysis. He died, after much suffering, in 1880.

656—PORTRAIT OF SIR BENJAMIN WEST, P. R. A.

By James Morris Davis. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. White hair dressed over the ears; gray eyes. Dark red coat with high collar and lapels and voluminous white cravat tied in a bow. Dark background. Painted on ivory (cracked). Inscribed on back in a contemporary hand, "Portrait of Benjamin West, President of the Royal Academy, painted by James Morris Davis of 41 Upper Grove Street, London, 1809." In square carved and gilt frame. Oval shape.

Size, 3¼ inches by 2¾ inches.

Benjamin West was born at Springfield, Pennsylvania, in 1738, and showed his artistic tendencies at an early age. In 1760 he was enabled by the help of friends to visit Italy, where he remained three years. He then settled in London as an historical painter. His success was so marked that in 1768 he was appointed Historical Painter to George III. On the death of Sir Joshua Reynolds he was elected his successor as President of the Royal Academy. In 1804 he resigned his office, but was induced to recall his resignation. He died in 1820 in his eighty-second year and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Of James Morris Davis all that is recorded is that he was a miniature painter who attained some degree of popularity early in the Nineteenth Century. Between 1799 and 1812 he exhibited over 60 miniatures at the Royal Academy.

657—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

By George Michel. Three-quarter length. Standing in a landscape. Full face inclined slightly towards the right. Fair hair dressed over a cushion with a blue ribbon intertwined and confining two roses. Necklace of a single string of very large pearls. Décolleté dress, of the Eighteenth Century period, of blue over a rose-colored bodice, with deep lace trimming. The sitter smiles, and with her right hand holds up a rose to the level of her face, the other arm is supported on a moss-grown stone, and she holds back with one finger the blue overdress. Landscape background of a tree, dark foliage and blue sky. Painted on ivory. Inscribed on back, "Michel," but undated. In modern ormolu frame. Square shape.

Size, 3 inches by 3 inches.

George Michel was a French artist, born in 1763, who was a pupil of Leduc, and attained some distinction as an expert copyist. He was employed by Cardinal Fesch in 1785 to restore the pictures in his celebrated collection.

658—PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG WOMAN

By P. Violet. Three-quarter length, seated. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Dark brown hair dressed in ringlets low over the forehead, confined with a circlet of gold beads and with a turban-like head-dress of white. The décolleté short-sleeved and high-waisted Empire dress is of black over a white chemisette. Around the neck is a single string of amber beads. The bare right arm rests on the arm of a mahogany chair. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory (cracked). Signed, "P. Violet," and dated 1803. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 4¼ inches by 3½ inches.

Pierre Violet was born in 1749 and came to Paris in 1770, soon after his arrival securing an appointment to the Royal establishment. He became exceedingly popular as a miniature painter, and in 1788 published a book upon the art, which met with considerable success. In 1789 he accompanied the tide of émigrés to England, and there soon attained a popularity almost equal to that he had enjoyed in his own country. From 1790 until his death in 1820 he was a constant exhibitor at the Royal Academy, and among his sitters was the Prince of Wales. Bartolozzi engraved several of his miniatures, notably that of Marie Antoinette "en peignoir."

659—PORTRAIT OF LADY DARNLEY

By John S. Stump. Bust length. Full face. Curling, dark brown hair and brown eyes, and high complexion. She wears a lace cap with lappets, purple strings and a purple flower, ruby ear-rings and a high-waisted black velvet dress with a white lace fichu. Grayish background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Stump, pt.," but undated. In modern brass frame, with gilt mount. Oval shape.

Size, 3 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches by 3 inches.

The eldest daughter of Sir Henry Parnell, who afterwards became Lord Congleton, Emma Jane Parnell was born in 1795 and was married to Edward, the fifth Earl Darnley, in 1825. She lived a life of widowhood for nearly half a century, for Lord Darnley died in 1835, while she survived until 1884.

John S. Stump, the date of whose birth is uncertain, was a student of the Royal Academy, and a constant exhibitor during the first half of the Nineteenth Century. He contributed theatrical portraits in character and some classical subjects. He held a high place among his contemporaries, Redgrave saying of his work that it was marked by great tone and breadth. He died in 1863.

660—PORTRAIT OF GENTLEMAN

By — Busset. Bust length. Full face. Dark brown curly hair falling over the forehead and short side-whiskers; gray eyes. Dark blue coat with high standing collar, lapels and brass buttons; white waistcoat. Very high white cambric neckerchief tied in front. Dark background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated (about 1820), but inscribed on back with the artist's name. In ivory frame. Oval shape.

Size, 2¾ inches by 2 inches.

661—PORTRAIT OF LADY ST. ASAPH

By Richard Cosway. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking to the left. Fair hair falling in ringlets and wavy locks over the shoulders and confined within a white silk kerchief arranged in turban fashion. The décolleté white bodice is edged with lace. Around the neck is a single string of large pearls. Background of blue sky with light cloud effect. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated, but inscribed on the back, "Lady St. Asaph by Cosway, R.A., 1784." In gold frame fitted as locket, with an ornamental device of the sitter's hair, seed pearls and gold wire at the back. Oval shape.

Size, 2¾ inches by 2¼ inches.

Lady St. Asaph was the third daughter of Thomas, 1st Marquess of Bath, and was born in 1762. On August 28th, 1784, she became the first wife of George, the eldest son of the 2d Earl of Ashburnham, who carried the courtesy title of Viscount St. Asaph. Lady St. Asaph died in 1791, before her husband succeeded to his father's title.

That this miniature bears no signature is not surprising, for of signed miniatures by Richard Cosway there are not more than four or five in existence. Occasionally he wrote his name across the back, but practically never signed on the face. Of all the Eighteenth Century miniaturists Richard Cosway has left the most enduring reputation. In his own lifetime, thanks partly to his eccentricity and foppishness, and thanks, too, to the celebrated parties his wife, Maria Cosway (herself a miniaturist of renown), gave at Schomberg House, Cosway was held in the highest repute and was one of the most talked-of men in London. He was a Devonshire man, born about 1742. He began exhibiting in London in 1760, and soon attracted the attention of the Prince Regent. He died in 1821. The work of Cosway, it has been well said, is in its way supreme, and his miniatures represent the beauties of a period which was nothing if not elegant.

662—PORTRAIT OF MARIA THÉRESA

By ——— Gundall. Bust length. Full face. Brown hair showing only in small corkscrew curls under white cap. White lawn and lace fichu with brooch over dark green dress. She wears the Cross of the Order of Maria Thérèse at her breast. Sky-blue background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Gundall," but undated. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 1½ inches by 1¼ inches.

Maria Thérèse, born in 1717, was Queen of Hungary and daughter of the Emperor Charles VI of Germany. In 1731 she married François Etienne, Duke of Lorraine, and, her father dying in 1740, the succession to his throne was disputed by Frederick the Great and the Electors of Bavaria and Saxony. Supported by England she carried on the celebrated Seven Years' War, and was finally victorious. She was popular with her people, not only on account of her domestic virtues, but by reason of her heroic constancy in waging the war of succession. In 1758 she founded the Order of Maria Thérèse in memory of the Battle of Kollin. She died in 1780.

663—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

By ——— Élie. Half-length. Three-quarter view looking towards the right. Powdered hair dressed over a cushion, falling in ringlets over both shoulders, and with a blue ribbon entwined; gray eyes. Across the shoulders is thrown a simple fichu of thin white lawn loosely knotted at the breast. The bodice of the dress is of a purplish-blue. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "F. Élie," and dated 1734. In modern gilt frame. Circular shape.

Diameter, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

François Élie was born in Geneva, but in what year is uncertain. The first mention of him is in the "Menus Plaisirs," where it is recorded that in 1749 he painted portraits of the King (Louis XV), the Dauphin, Madame Sophie, Madame Louise, and the Duc de Bourgoyne, receiving for them the orthodox fee of 240 francs.

664—PORTRAIT OF LADY ABERGAVENNY

By Sir Thomas Lawrence, P. R. A. Half-length. Nearly full face looking towards the right. Dark hair arranged in falling side curls and in twisted plaits on the top of the head. Brown eyes. Décolleté and short-sleeved dress of black velvet with an ermine hood thrown across the shoulders. Around the neck is a long chain of plaited hair. She wears, as ear-rings, long drops of jet. Gray background. Painted on ivory (cracked). Unsigned and undated. Inscribed on back. In modern ormolu frame. Rectangular shape.

Size, $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches by $2\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

Caroline, Lady Abergavenny, was the second daughter of Ralph Leeke of Longland Hall, Shropshire, and was married to William, the 4th Earl of Abergavenny, in 1824. She died in 1873.

Sir Thomas Lawrence (born 1769, died 1830), who ended his career as President of the Royal Academy, began it, at six years old, as a sort of infant prodigy by sketching the likenesses of the folk who frequented his father's inn at Devizes. When the family moved to Bath he was a boy of thirteen, but he soon found himself fully employed in taking portraits, in crayon, of the fashionables of the place at a guinea a head. He came to London in 1787 and entered, as a student, at the Royal Academy. His reputation as a portrait painter grew apace and he succeeded Reynolds as principal painter to the King in 1792. He became a Royal Academician in 1794, and for the next forty years he was undoubtedly the leading portrait painter of England, if not of Europe. He was elected President of the Academy in 1820, a position he held until his death in 1830. Although not usually reckoned as a miniature painter, several examples of his work in this vein were shown at Kensington in 1865, including one of George IV, when Prince of Wales, and another of Lady Seaton.

665—PORTRAIT OF M^{LLE}. CONTAT

By ——— Snasboux. Half-length. Full face. Dark hair dressed low over the forehead in curls and with a large comb at back. Brown eyes. Dressed in a high-waisted gown of white lawn confined by a black and white silk cord at the waist and open at the neck, with lace trimming. Over the shoulders is thrown a reddish-colored shawl. Background of light gray. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Snasboux," and dated 1804. In old ormolu frame. Circular shape.

Diameter, 2 $\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

Louise Contat, one of the most celebrated of the Eighteenth Century members of the Comédie-Française, was born in Paris in 1760. She made her début in 1776 and exhibited so much intelligence, despite her youth, that Beaumarchais intrusted to her the part of Suzanne in the first performance of "Le Mariage de Figaro." She made a surprising success in the part, and soon took her place in the company as one of the greatest interpreters of Molière that her century knew. During the Reign of Terror, she fell under suspicion of the Committee of Public Safety and was imprisoned. She was soon released, however, and continued to act until her death in 1813.

666—PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG WOMAN

By — Dun. Half-length. Full face. Dark hair in irregular curls and falling over the shoulders. Dark gray eyes. High-waisted purple dress over white chemisette, confined at the waist by a red girdle. Greenish sleeves to undergarment. Blue background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Dun," but undated. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape. From the sale of the celebrated Hamilton Palace collection at Christie's, July, 1882. This was lot 1487. Catalogued as "A Lady in a purple dress and red sash. Signed Dun."

Size, 3 inches by 2 $\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

A Flemish miniature painter named Dun attained some popularity in Naples during the Eighteenth Century and one of his portraits on ivory was exhibited at Kensington in 1865.

667—PORTRAIT OF A MAN

By John Smart (1740-1811). Bust length. Three-quarter view facing towards the right. Powdered hair standing out around the face. Hazel eyes. Plum-colored coat with high collar, no lapels and brass buttons, white waistcoat and cambric cravat with frill. Grayish background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "J. S.," and dated 1789, with letter I under dated. Mounted in chased and engraved gold as locket. Oval shape.

Size 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches by 1 $\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

"It is by his incomparable painting of faces that he takes his high position," says Dr. George C. Williams, of the miniature painter John Smart. He was born about 1740, and was a pupil of Cosway with whom he was always on terms of close friendship. In 1788 he went to India where he remained for five years, signing the letter I below the date on the miniatures he painted in that country. He was a member of the Free Society of Artists and also of the Incorporated Society of Artists. He died in 1811.

668—PORTRAIT OF A LADY OF THE COURT OF LOUIS XV

By ——— Vasseur. Half-length. Full face turned towards the left. Powdered hair dressed over a cushion in front and falling in ringlets over the shoulders; hazel-colored eyes. She wears a blue robe caught at the left shoulder with a bunch of roses and exposing the bosom, and a necklace of a single string of large pearls. Background of blue sky and dark cloud effects. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Vasseur," but undated (about 1760). In contemporary chased gold and silver frame of fine workmanship, set with diamonds and rubies. Oval shape.

Size, 2 inches by 1½ inches.

669—PORTRAIT OF A LADY OF THE COURT OF CHARLES X

By Verny d'Ouille. Three-quarter length, seated, Full view of face looking towards the left. Dark brown hair dressed in corkscrew ringlets massed over the ears. Brown eyes. Décolleté dress of black velvet with high waist and short sleeves. The right arm falls downward towards the lap, the left arm with the hand showing, is supported on the purplish velvet cushion of the chair. Dark green background with a fold of dark purple drapery. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated, but inscribed on back. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 5⅜ inches by 4⅜ inches.

670—PORTRAIT OF A BRITISH OFFICER

By John S. Stump. Bust length. Three-quarter view facing to the right. Dark brown wavy hair and side-whiskers. Brown eyes. Dressed in an ensign's uniform of red coat, with standing collar of gold lace and shoulder straps. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Signed "J. S. Stump, pt." In oval brass frame. Octagonal shape.

Size, $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches by $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

671—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

By ——— Bonvier. Bust length. Full face. Dark hair, slightly powdered, dressed over a cushion in front, falling in ringlets over both shoulders, surmounted by a black feather head-dress, and tied at the left side with a bow of purple ribbon and a double loop of pearls. White lace fichu with a white rose at the shoulder, blue bodice and light red sleeves. Around the neck is a double row of large pearls. Dark background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Bonvier," and dated 1790. In ormolu frame, with easel back. Circular shape.

Diameter, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

672—PORTRAIT OF THE DUCHESS OF WELLINGTON

By ——— Herman. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Dark hair, waved and dressed low over the ears in the early Victorian style. Gray eyes. Décolleté dress of light blue with a rose in front of the bodice. Light colored background. Painted on ivory. In old pocket case of morocco leather. Oval shape.

Size, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches by $1\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

While serving on the staff of Lord Westmoreland in Dublin (1790-3), Arthur Wellesley, who subsequently became the Duke of Wellington, became engaged to Catherine Pakenham, the third daughter of Lord Longford. There was strong family opposition to the match, and while Wellesley was in India, Miss Pakenham, having contracted a severe case of smallpox, wrote offering him his release. He declined to be released, however, and on his return home in 1806, they were married in Dublin. The marriage, however, was not successful, and, though there was no formal separation, they lived a good deal apart. The Duchess died in 1831, leaving two sons, Arthur, who became the second Duke of Wellington, and Charles, who attained high rank in the British army.

673—PORTRAIT OF A GENTLEMAN

By Richard Cosway. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Curled and powdered hair; brown eyes. Blue coat with high silk faced collar, and knotted white cravat. Light colored background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. Framed in gold locket, with loop and with crystal back to receive hair. Oval shape.

Size, $2\frac{3}{8}$ inches by $1\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

NOTE.—It can scarcely be doubted that this miniature is due to the facile brush of Richard Cosway. The lack of a signature is, if anything, presumptive evidence in its favor, when the style and the character of the handling are taken into consideration.

674—PORTRAIT OF THE EMPRESS JOSEPHINE

By D. Boset. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Dark brown hair in short corkscrew ringlets, confined over the forehead by a double circlet of pearls; hazel-colored eyes. High standing lace ruff and puffed green sleeves, with a red mantle thrown over the shoulders. Around the neck is a double string of large pearls. Dark background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "D. Boset," and dated 1812. In modern ormolu frame. Octagonal shape.

Size, $2\frac{1}{8}$ inches by $2\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

Josephine, Empress of the French, was born in 1763, at Trois-Ilets, Martinique, and was married at the age of sixteen, by a family arrangement, to the Vicomte Alexandre Beauharnais, who fell a victim to the Revolutionary Convention in 1790. Five years later she called on General Bonaparte to thank him for restoring her husband's sword, and made so instant an impression on him that they were married on March 9th, 1796. As Empress her beauty and amiability won upon everybody, but Napoleon, mortified at the lack of offspring, decided to divorce her. This, with a show of reluctance, he did in 1809, and she retired to Malmaison. Her affection for Napoleon remained unaltered to the day of her death on May 24th, 1814.

675—PORTRAIT OF INGRES

By Mme. De Mirbel (?). Half-length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Brown hair parted at the side; gray eyes. High-collared, black coat, with lapels; white waistcoat, high white collar and voluminous neckcloth tied in a bow in front. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. Forms the lid of a black lacquer snuff box, gold mounted and tortoise shell lined. Inscribed, "de Mirbel," on inside of lid, but, by Mr. Adolf Kohn, through whom Mr. Harper acquired it, attributed to Jean B. J. Augustin (1759-1832). Circular shape.

Diameter, 2¼ inches.

Jean Auguste Dominique Ingres, whose name is deservedly associated with all that is best in French art of the early Nineteenth Century, was born in 1780, at Montauban. As a youth of sixteen, he came to Paris and studied under David, head of the classical school, and, though his individuality soon asserted itself so that by the strict followers of David he was accounted a renegade, he remained a classicist to his life's end. His works—and his output was large, for he preserved his faculties to the end of his long life—may be studied to advantage, not only in the Louvre, but in many important public buildings in France. The most widely known, perhaps, is “La Source,” painted in 1862. He died in 1867.

Aimée Zoe Mirbel (née Leczinska) was born in Cherbourg in 1796. Coming at an early age to Paris to study the art of miniature painting, she became a pupil of the celebrated Jean Baptiste Augustin. So marked was her talent that Louis XVIII appointed her miniature painter to the court, and she became the leading miniaturist during the reigns of Charles X and Louis Philippe. Her portraits include those of the leading statesmen and court ladies of her period, and are marked by their delicacy and breadth of treatment. She died in 1849.

676—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

By D. A. Bois. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Auburn hair, with a long ringlet falling over the shoulder and roses at the side. Pale yellow dress with a blue overmantle and roses at the corsage. Greenish background. In an oval panel surrounded by cupids in various attitudes against a background of blue sky. Painted on ivory. Signed, “D. A. BOIS,” and dated 1758. Forms the lid of a bonbonnière of tortoise shell mounted in chased and engraved gold. Circular shape.

Diameter, 3 inches.

677—PORTRAIT OF MAXIMILIEN ROBESPIERRE

By ——— Platel. Bust length. Full face looking towards the right. Long, light brown hair falling straight over the ears. Blue eyes. Dressed in a blue coat with high collar and lapels with high white linen collar open at the neck and cambric frill. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Signed, “Platel . L,” and dated "2nd R" (second year of the Republic or 1793-4). In old ebony and ormolu frame. Circular shape.

Diameter, 2½ inches.

Maximilien Marie Isidore Robespierre, whose name stands for all that was fanatical and blood-thirsty in the French Revolution, was born at Arras in 1758, of a family of Irish descent. Having studied for the law, he was appointed a judge in the diocese of Arras in 1782, but resigned his appointment in order to avoid pronouncing a sentence of death. He was returned to the State-General in 1789, as a member of the Tiers-état of Artois. He became the leader of the party of the Mountain, was chiefly responsible for the execution of Louis XVI, and when his party triumphed over the Girondists (May, 1793), he exercised the power of a Dictator and inaugurated the Reign of Terror, prescribing and sending to the guillotine all who opposed him, until at last his tyranny overreached itself, and he himself, by order of the Convention itself, was guillotined the 10th Thermidor 1794.

The painter of this miniature was probably the Platel (Christian name uncertain), who was the father of Edouard Platel, a French painter of some reputation who was born in 1811 and died in 1859.

678—PORTRAIT OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

After J. A. S. Duplessis. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Long gray hair reaching to the shoulders; brown eyes, clean shaven face. Dressed in a gray coat and waistcoat, with white cravat and frill. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. An admirable, and possibly contemporary, copy in miniature of the original pastel from life by J. A. Duplessis, painted in 1783 and now in the possession of John Bigelow, Esquire. Oval shape.

Size, 1¾ inches by 1½ inches.

Josef Sifrède Duplessis was born in 1725, and destined for the priesthood. He showed his inclination for the arts at an early age, and studied under his father. Losing his fortune in the Revolution, he accepted the post of Conservator of the Versailles Museum, and died in 1802. His portraits were highly considered.

679—PORTRAIT OF A MAN

By — Chapon. Bust length. Three-quarter view, facing to the right. Dark wavy hair, side-whiskers, and dark brown eyes. He wears a black coat with high-rolled collar, a white cravat tied in a bow, high white collar and frilled shirt with studs. Light background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Chapon," and dated 1829. Oval shape. Mounted in gold as locket with monogram, "P. L.," in hair at back.

Size, 2¼ inches by 1⅞ inches.

But little is known about the career of Chapon, even his Christian name being uncertain. According to Mr. J. J. Foster, he was a French miniaturist who flourished about the year 1820.

680—PORTRAIT OF FRANCIS I, OF FRANCE

By Olivier Le Roux. Bust length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the left. Dark hair and short curly beard and moustache; brown eyes. Flat black velvet cap embroidered with pearls, and with a jewelled clasp and white ostrich plume. He wears a dark brown fur cloak thrown back so as to expose a close fitting undergarment of light blue, embroidered with gold blue silk and pearls, under which appears a gathered skirt of thin lawn. Dark green background. Painted on card. Signed, "Olivier Le Roux," but undated. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 3½ inches by 3 inches.

Francis I, King of France, was born in 1494, and succeeded his uncle, Louis XII, in 1515. After his defeat at Paira in 1525 he was imprisoned for more than a year, but in defiance of the terms of his parole he renewed the war which was not concluded till 1544. He was a liberal patron of arts and letters, and founded the Collège de France. He died in 1547.

681—PORTRAIT OF LORD RANELAGH

By Jeremiah Meyer, R. A. Bust length. Three-quarter view of head looking over the shoulder to the right. Long straight powdered hair and hazel-colored eyes. He wears a double-breasted blue uniform coat, with high red-lined collar and lapels, and a white cravat tied in a loose bow. Background of blue sky with white cloud effects. Painted on ivory. Signed, "I. Meyer." In a contemporary reeded gold frame, arranged as a brooch. Oval shape.

Size, 2¾ inches by 2¼ inches.

Charles Jones, the 5th Viscount Ranelagh, was born in 1765 (?), and succeeded to the title in 1797, when he was a captain in the Royal navy. His tenure of the title was brief, for he died unmarried in 1800, and was succeeded by his brother.

Jeremiah Meyer, born in Tubingen in 1735, came to London as a boy of fourteen, and when still in his twenties was appointed "Enameller" to George III. As a miniature painter, however, he was exceptionally talented. His work, as is evidenced in the present instance, displays a refinement of color, a perfection of finish, and a truth to life surpassed by hardly one of his contemporaries. He was a foundation member of the Royal Academy, and a devoted admirer of Sir Joshua Reynolds, by whose work his own style was very largely influenced. He died in 1789.

682—PORTRAIT OF PAULINE BONAPARTE (ABOUT 1800)

By J. F. Hollier. Nearly half-length. Full face looking towards the left. Dark hair dressed in curls high over the forehead and in twisted plaits at the back. In front, across the forehead, is a wreath of white roses. High-waisted, short-sleeved Empire dress of white satin with silk embroidered bodice. Around the neck is a double row of large white pearls. Gray background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "hollier," but undated. In gold locket frame. Oval shape.

Size, $2\frac{5}{8}$ inches by $1\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

Jean François Hollier, one of the leading French miniature painters of the Napoleonic period, was born in Chantilly in 1780, and as a youth was a pupil of both David and Isabey. His work was chiefly executed between 1806 and 1840, his most notable portraits being those of Madame Paradol, the actress; Talma, the tragedian, and Marshal Ney. He died in Paris in 1845.

683—PORTRAIT OF PRINCE METTERNICH

By P. Mayr, Nearly half-length. Almost full face looking towards the right. White curly hair. Brown eyes. Black double-breasted coat, with high rolling collar and lapels, showing brown corded waistcoat. White stock, with blue ribbon around the neck, from which depends an order. In the left lapel are the insignia of four other orders. Light gray background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "P. Mayr," and dated 1827. In modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches by $2\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

684—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

By Bd. de Rurey. Nearly half-length. Three-quarter view facing to the left. Brown eyes and powdered hair falling in ringlets about the neck, and encircled by a twisted red ribbon. She wears a large black felt hat, with a purple feather and blue ribbon, a fichu of fine cambric with a white rose at the breast, and a bodice of blue, with a pattern of blue fleurettes. The background is of dark green. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Bd. de Rurey," and dated 1786. In a modern ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, $3\frac{5}{8}$ inches by $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

685—PORTRAIT OF A LADY

By ——— Lendel. Half-length. Three-quarter view looking towards the right. Powdered hair with long ringlets falling over the shoulders and wide-brimmed leghorn hat, trimmed with flowers. Blue bodice, with pointed stomacher, rose-colored skirt and white chemisette. The right arm hangs by the side, with the hand resting lightly on the edge of a table. Dark colored background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Lendel," and dated 1783. In chased and engraved ormolu frame. Circular shape.

Diameter, $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

686—PORTRAIT OF THE VICOMTE DE CHATEAUBRIAND

By Mlle. Debréval. Half-length. Full face slightly turned towards the left. Curly black hair and thin side-whiskers. Dressed in a dark blue high-collared coat of the style of 1815, with lapels and brass buttons. White waistcoat, showing at the neck, and with a high linen collar and voluminous white cravat tied in a small bow. In his buttonhole he wears the insignia of three orders. Dark gray background. Painted on ivory. Signed "Mlle. Debréval," and dated "Xbre (December) 1816." Framed in a chased and engraved contemporary ormolu frame and mount. Oval shape.

Size, $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches by $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

François René, Vicomte de Chateaubriand, the most notable figure in French literature during the First Empire, was born at St. Malo in 1768, and, after declining to enter the church, obtained a commission in the army in 1788. After a visit to America in 1790 he returned to France on the eve of the execution of Louis XVI, and was forced to join the ranks of the Emigrés who fled to England. Here he lived obscurely for several years, devoting himself to his prose poems Atala and René, reminiscences of his American experiences. It was, however, his Genius of Christianity, published on his return to France, that made his name famous. Louis XVIII, when he ascended the throne, made much of him, and he served as Ambassador in both London and Rome, with a brief interlude as Foreign Minister. He died, tended by his old friend, Madame Recamier, in 1848, leaving his celebrated Memoires d'Outre-Tombe, the composition of which had occupied him at intervals during the greater part of his life.

687—PORTRAIT OF SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON

By Bernard de Guerard. Half-length. Three-quarter view of face looking towards the right. Tie-wig and brown eyes. Dressed in a brown coat, with high collar, white silk-faced lapels and silver buttons. Lace steenkirk. Dark background. Painted on ivory. Signed, "Bernard de Guerard," and dated 1795. In old ormolu frame. Circular shape.

Diameter, 2 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches.

Sir William Hamilton, antiquary and patron of the arts, was born in 1730, of a poor but noble Scottish family. In 1755 he married an heiress, and in 1767 he was accredited Ambassador to Naples. This post he retained until 1800, devoting his leisure to the study of classical antiquities and forming a valuable collection, of which the greater part is now in the British Museum. His second wife was the Emma Harte, or Lyon, so closely associated with the career of Nelson. She survived her husband who died in 1803.

688—PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG LADY

By Miss Peel. Bust length. Full face. Dark hair drawn off from the forehead and dressed in a cluster of curls on top of the head. Long drop ear-rings of diamonds in a gold setting. Black velvet dress, fastened in front with a sapphire brooch, and a long gold chain thrown over the shoulders. Background of the base of a column and conventional purple drapery. Painted on ivory. Unsigned and undated. Mounted in gold as a locket. Oval shape.

Size, 3 inches by 2 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches.

Miss Peel was an American miniaturist of the early Nineteenth Century. She lived and practiced her profession in Philadelphia. She afterwards became Mrs. A. C. Staughton.

689—PORTRAIT OF ELDERLY MAN

By Kotta. Bust length. Profile view of face looking towards the right. Tie-wig. White coat with high brown velvet collar and lapels. Lace cravat. Slaty blue background. Painted, in gouache, on card. Signed at back, "Kotta del, 1791." In ormolu frame. Oval shape.

Size, 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches by 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches.
